Spencer for her guidance and untiring work.

The Editor

We, the class of 1955, dedicate our yearbook to Mrs. Eunice Jackson, who through the past years has endeavored to serve balanced and delicious meals to the students of Moncure School.

TO THE SENIORS OF THE MONCURE SCHOOL:

The Seniors of the Moncure School are scheduled to receive diplomas at the end of the 1954-55 school year. The diplomas will be indicative of your growth. You have grown physically, spiritually and mentally, and your diploma is to some extent a certificate indicating the degree to which you have grown.

You will now be looking to the future. Some will pursue studies further in the colleges, universities and business schools. Others will go into some vocation. But regardless of what you do, it will be necessary, if you wish to succeed, to continue to grow. Growth is the only evidence of life; without it we deteriorate and fail to reach maximum potentialities.

I predict that your success in life will be determined more by whether you continue to grow, spiritually and mentally, than by fact that you hold a high school diploma.

SCHOOL SONG

We're dreaming dreams; we're scheming schemes;
We're building castles high.
Our high school dear so far and near
Will win praise up to the sky.
We want to share in her glory;
So we repeat the old story . . .

CHORUS:

Here's to dear old Moncure High School.
We shall love her till we die.
She's right on top; she'll never stop;
We'll fight for her until we drop.
She's our alma mater; she is staunch and true.
We'll be true to her forever,
Moncure High School, here's to you.

CLASS HISTORY

Looking back into the past, we recall various scenes of a great drama in which we were very fortunate to have had leading roles.

Scene I - Our story began four short years ago under the direction of Mrs. Eatmon. The fifteen of us were very proud to become high school students. Later our number was increased to sixteen.

Scene II - Our second year was spent under the guidance of Mr. Ragan with only twelve out of sixteen participating in our activities. We enjoyed a trip to Chapel Hill and the Planetarium, accompanied by Mrs. Askew.

Scene III - This was a very big year for us -- sharing our homework with the seniors and receiving those precious class rings -- under the leadership of Mrs. Kidd and Mr. McCall. We have never forgotten those funny early morning jokes Mr. McCall told us. April 9, 1954, was the date of the banquet that we gave the seniors. We'll never forget the anxiety we experienced of not knowing whether it would be a success until it was all over.

Scene IV - The last scene of our play was a very memorable one. We finally realized the real meaning of work when we published Echoes of '55 under the leadership of Mrs. Spencer. This scene closed when we received our diplomas which gave us the right to walk onto a bigger and greater stage -- that of the big wide world.

CLASS PROPHECY

Arriving home last night after having attended the graduation exercises in the small community in which I had lived as a girl, my thoughts left me and I began to look into the past and relive some of the great scenes of the Class of '55, of which I had been a part. I began to wonder what had happened to the ten of us. Then I picked up some old newspapers and what do you think I found? Yes, articles about Moncure High School, Class of 1955. These articles reveal interesting facts of my old school days and classmates, who are doing very well in their professions. Oh, yes, I remember them all.

Aleene Mitchell, the quiet girl of the class, has become a famous woman speaker. She has just finished a book on how to overcome shyness.

Myrtle Painter is now a chorus girl with the June Taylor dancers on the Jackie Gleason show. She got her ballet practice jumping mud puddles, while going to the lunchroom at school.

Look who is playing the role of Romeo now--Billy Turner. That's understandable, after his big romances of old high school days.

Callie Glosson has finally taken over Mrs. Jackson's place as cook at the Moncure High School Lunchroom. She was such a talented girl.

Hoyle Beckwith, who is one of the most eligible and richest bachelors in the world, is teaching Agriculture at Wake Forest College.

Well, a pleasure tour of the United States has just been completed by one of our classmates, Peggy Gray, who thought waiting at home was useless.

Margaret Morton, who had great outlooks on life, is just sitting home with the kids, although she does write a few television scripts in her spare time.

Can you guess who got the position as Game Warden? Bruce Harrington. He is now living in his little wooden shack on the Cape Fear River.

The badge for the Sheriff of Moncure has just been turned over to Donald Obler, since Mr. Wester has retired.

George Selkinghaus, who was our famous newspaper carrier, is now the editor of the Moncure Observer.

As I look into the future, I am sure that the memories of all my high school classmates will linger with me for many, many years.
